According to a news report, drug abuse and trafficking have been spreading in our society like an epidemic. 16 is even more astonishing is that the police records show drug abuse has become the second most common type of crime among teenagers. Nowadays a great many people hardly raise an eyebrow 17 the sight of people selling drugs, especially amphetamines, in places where teenagers hang out. To make matters worse, drug dealers even invade 18. In 1990, 27% of all drug addicts were addicted to amphetamines, 19 the percentage in 1992 reached 74%. These statistics show the incredible increase of amphetamine addicts, and unfortunately, more than 50% of them are 20 addicts.

As we know, drugs can, 21, give us sheer sensual pleasures but the sensation is momentary, whereas the severe pains they cause can 22 long enough to weaken our will, destroy our health, and worst of all, rot our soul. 23, drug addicts, to get the money needed for the purchase of drugs, 24 commit horrible crimes such as robbery, kidnapping, or blackmail. Drug addicts not only hurt themselves physically and 25 but also become a threat to society. Therefore, it is everybody's business to kick drugs out of campus and out of society.

In many ways, talking is an art and we must not underestimate the effect of words. Well-used words become masterpieces, which can create and nourish. 26, words shaped without thoughtful consideration can hurt and destroy, causing unbearable pain and deep regret. So before we speak, perhaps it would be wise to first give 27 thought to what we wish to say. Will it hurt anyone? Will it start an unnecessary dispute? Will it reopen old wounds? 28 a few jokes or frank remarks are OK, many of us can't tell 29 the thin line between acceptable and unacceptable is. What might seem a 30 joke to us may send someone else over the edge. 31, things of no real importance are often best left 32. Wise are those who heed this fine rule of life and who talk little and carefully. For while we are perfectly free to give 33 to our thoughts, we must not forget the rights of others—the right not to be made a laughing stock, to be 34, and to enjoy the music of our 35.
